Ann Marie Nacke from the Academic Advising Center announced a couple of events: The Feist/Schamel Outstanding Undergraduate Faculty Advisor Award nominations are due March 7. Major Mania happens on March 21. Fliers left on table and also available on the Advising Center web site, or give them a call.

IV A. President's Comments - Jon Genetti

2. Nominations are now open for next-term's Senate President-Elect. President-Elect statements from nominees are due by March 27 to be included in the next agenda. Send to Jayne.
3. Nominations for the Outstanding Senator of the Year Award are due by March 18; and may be sent to Jayne at fysenat@uaf.edu, or call x7964. If you would like to be on the OSYA Selection Committee, see Jayne.

B. President-elect's Comments - Marsha Sousa

A memo has gone out clarifying FERPA issues with regard to confidentiality; particularly students who have put a confidential hold on their records. No phone consultation or online advising with these students is permitted – advising must be done in person after they've presented a form .ed 0SrIDC T*()TjEMC /P ÅMdue

Jon R. asked about seeing this hold online in student records. Marsha confirmed that instructors can see this hold online when they look up their students. Jon Genetti commented that any graded work of the student becomes part of the confidential record, and is technically under the confidential hold. So if a student (with a confidential hold) wanted their grade over the phone, it can not even be confirmed over the phone that they're a student. Because of that hold, they must present valid UAF or government ID in person. The recent FERPA memo references computer accounts and business office functions – but hasn't addressed faculty or advising issues. Jon has two students with holds in his class, and he's verified their identities and made verbal agreements to allow communication via email, but it must come from their UAF user accounts. It's estimated that 11% of students have this hold. Instructors should talk to their students with confidential holds and make arrangements for communication within those constraints.

V A. Remarks by Provost Susan Henrichs

The Chancellor is in Finland and so Susan will talk about the UA budget. The university's budget has been considered and moved out of the House, but lots of other steps, including the Senate and Conference, are still ahead so nothing is a done deal about the budget yet. With the House version there was an initial version that cut out an aggregate total of about five million dollars from the fixed cost increment request. This cut the step increases for staff, and cut out an allocation for increased fuel costs. There was an emergency meeting of BOR that changed the compensation policies of the university so that step increases were reduced relative to COLA increases, so that most of the increases for employees would come as cost of living increases as opposed to step increases. With that change they were able to restore fixed cost money for employee increases, but the fuel cost reduction was still left out. There is an assurance that later on there will be an adjustment for fuel costs for all state agencies and state-funded organizations. In terms of programmatic increments, much of the Allied Health and Construction and Engineering increments are there, but all else is gone from the House version. Still removed from the budget is an unallocated cut of about three-quarters of a million dollars to the SW systems budget, which was in response to press in Anchorage about concerns for UAA's budget in light of statewide's budget having grown more rapidly than any of the three MAUs delivering programs. So the legislature has decided to address this by taking this unallocated reduction to the statewide MAU, saying they needed to cut spending. But as all funding funnels through statewide to the campuses, a cut to them impacts us below at least as much as it might affect things at statewide. Just on general principles we don't want the legislature to micromanage the university's funding. We don't want to return the era where the legislature could control how much Anchorage or Fairbanks gets in funding – it should remain the purview of the BOR. Collectively all of the MAUs, including statewide, feel that the legislature directing where cuts should be taken is not the direction for the university to go. We should continue to manage our resources, with the BOR, statewide system and campus MAUs all working together to deliver programs with the funding we have available. There will be last minute wrangling of what is in the budget up to the end of the process, as usual. Somewhat pessimistic about funding for BIOS making it into the capital budget. Hoping to have the increment for R and R funded, though.

As a campus we're moving forward on electronic faculty activity reporting, but the plan is for a more gradual movement with feedback along the way, not all at once. Wants a useful system but not an onerous one for faculty. Hoping for an even trade of effort on both sides. A phased implementation is planned with people in several units signing up for the system this spring. If they wish they can enter info between now and the fall when reports are due. Then, we'll see how it goes with that subgroup. Based on feedback, the intent is to move on to everyone participating in the Fall of 2009. SFOS piloted the program and identified glitches with that version which was not in full form yet. Now working on being able to incorporate uploading citation info in Endnote to the program, among other ways, to make it less difficult to use. Although somewhat time consuming, for most people it's not an incredible time investment. SFOS folks spent 2-3 hours getting info into the electronic format. If you have a lot of publications and abstracts it could be more time consuming, and you might need to have some staff assistance to do that. Direct benefits to faculty come on down the road with personal reporting for activities and preparing promotion and tenure files. Ultimately you should easily be able to generate documents for P&T files. This makes it easier for a unit to do reporting each year, for example, the mission and measure reports for the statewide system, and PBB reports, generating proposal lists, publication lists and the like. There will be less work in the long run, but in the learning and implementation phase there will be more work initially.

Will administration be able to look at individual faculty and use the information against them? She says it won't happen at her level at her office as long as she's here. This doesn't really change the fact that info about what faculty are doing and their workload are already out there and being used by administrators. Statewide already points to and expresses concern about faculty info already out there. Statewide's Annual report (UA in Review) shows credit hours that are tabulated per faculty member and student credit hours per faculty member...comparing each campus to the other and to national figures. If Susan has more info to work with, for example, what kind of hours – graduate hours or lab intensive credits, she can then explain the numbers to them. More information is good, not bad.

Final thing the Provost mentioned is the revising and updating of the Blue Book (evaluation, promotion and tenure procedures). There will be a small group that Sarah Lewis will put together (staff, faculty, administrators) who will go through and make editorial changes and clarifications and improvements to wording. Some substantive changes will be proposed, as policy changes have superseded some of the older regulations. It will go to Faculty Affairs for review and then to the Senate for overall approval. Timeline: small committee now, passes it to Faculty Affairs in a month, and approved by end of academic year. This may be too ambitious of a time schedule. May end up being next fall for overall approval. Jordan Titus asked if unions will participate in the committee review. Susan said they'll work with the CBA in front of them; trying hard to align it to the CBA. The Blue Book is not a union document. They will involve Kris Racina who is familiar with the CBA's, but it's a faculty and university document and many union members will review the document. This Blue Book is more static, while the CBAs are fluid documents. The union will see it and can comment on it.

VI Governance Reports

A. Staff Council - Kayt Sunwood

Staff Alliance returned last week from Juneau lobbying. Saw firsthand about the goings on regarding staff compensation. It was exciting to see it all happen. Finally ratified their Staff Council elections and had they orientation of new members. There will be a retreat in March for SC, and will set what they'll be working on for rest of year and next. Bunnell House is one issue they'll be working on in Staff Affairs. Will work with other governance groups on this.

Staff Council is helping out on the merit and needs-based scholarships that Jake Hamburg will talk about.

B. ASUAF - Jake Hamburg

The Innovation Challenge has been extended to March 30 and 31, with ideas to improve campus and community sustainability and development.

An off-campus housing list is now up on their site, for benefit of new students.

VIII New Business

- A. Motion to approve a Masters of Natural Resource Management and Geography, submitted by the Graduate Academic & Advisory Committee.

Paul McCarthy, Chair of GAAC, spoke about the program, which had been returned to the Graduate Academic and Advisory Committee at the last Senate meeting. GAAC met again and

Workshop Announcement:

Provost reminded about workshop tomorrow (March 4) in Room E-F of Wood Center, from 1-4 pm. Barbara Willis is presenting on systematic peer evaluations of teaching. Thanks extended to Denis Wiesenburg who is providing webstreaming of this workshop. There are many handouts though, so contact Joy Morrison to get those.

Jon G. announced the panel discussion by the Northern Leadership Center, from 7-8:30 pm tonight

- b. Issue of part-time vs. full-time.
- 2. Approved Mandatory Placement Amendment motion. Discussion:
 - a. Writing samples: UAF doesn't require applicants to include an essay with their application—so placement into Eng. 111 couldn't be based on such an essay. The idea of Mandatory Placement was that students would be placed in an appropriate class and they would not have to deal with testing and placement on the first day of classes.
 - b. Standardized testing for English:
 - o Standardized tests scores for English aren't really a good placement indicator. Tests are timed, and thus a student who may have done well with a longer time span, as well as writing/rewriting drafts (e.g., the writing process), don't have an opportunity to perform well on time tests.
 - o Standardized tests are not good indicators for ESL students (due to the fact that they are timed tests).
 - o COMPASS is not a timed test. Accuplacer, which is not a timed test, is not used by UAF. ASSET, a timed test, is listed in the advisors manual and an equivalent test.
 - o Students who are placed in a developmental class may take the COMPASS test up until the first day of classes. If they do well on the COMPASS test, they can forgo the developmental class.
 - c. If standardized test score numbers are changed, does this have to go through Curr. Review and Faculty Senate? Probably not, but it would be nice to include pertinent faculty and Dana.
 - d. English 111 placement impacts placement into core science and perspectives on the human condition classes.
- 3. Discussed / Tabled (until next meeting) Associate of Science Degree. Discussion:
 - a. Scientists are generally not in favor of this degree, where as non-scientists are.
 - b. This motion has come up in the past, but was rejected by previous Provost.
 - c. Many other universities have such a degree.
 - d. This degree would be a stepping stone for a BS, whereas the AA isn't.
 - e. Courses offered are not available for rural students.
 - f. Need to change Math requirements to 200 or 272 (or higher) (remove 201).
- 4. Discussed BA in General Studies
 - a. This degree would be available for students who have most/all required credits, but can't graduate because they can't get through a required class in their major.
 - b. Right now the students are using the Interdisciplinary Studies degree to get by.

Outstanding Issues:

- CLEP (Dana)
- School of Management's Sports Management Minor in Business (Deana)

Curricular Affairs Committee Meeting Minutes Feb. 11, 2007

Present: Deanna Dieringer, Linda Hapsmith, Beth Leonard, Rainer Newberry, Ilana Kingsley, Libby Eddy, Amber Thomas, Jane Allen, Dana Thomas, Carol Lewis, Falk Huettmann

- Discussed possible BA in General Studies: Dana said that instead of creating a new BA, UAF is considering revising the current BA.
- Discussed proposed Associate of Science degree:
 - It's not an essential degree; the goal behind it is to lead more students into the sciences, especially in the rural areas.
 - Will not cost additional faculty; there may be some admin costs associated with the degree. The major cost is having someone be responsible for administering the program.
 - Math requirements need to be reviewed by Math dept. Perhaps add a footnote that says, "If you plan to go on to a B.S., a calculus course is recommended, since such a course is a B.S. requirement." Dana will talk to Ron Illingworth regarding the math requirement.
 - Motion to approve the proposed degree and send it on to FS, noting a slight modification to Math if necessary.
- Discussed proposed BA & Minor in Fisheries degrees:
 - There is seed money to set up the BA degree in fisheries; in the long run it could cost UAF money.
 - Would require hiring faculty.
 - There are more courses from School of Management than Fisheries; isn't this really a BA in Fisheries Management?
 - Fall of 2007 there were 16 admitted into the Fisheries program; 11 enrolled.
 - Ilana will contact Trent Sutton and Mike Castellini to attend the next Curr. Affairs committee meeting.
- Discussed Individual Study problems:
 - a. Faculty don't include Individ. Study in their workloads. They aren't getting credit for it.
 - b. In some instances "Special Topics" be used instead of "Individual Study."
 - Is this a FS issue? A union issue?
 - Carol will bring the issue of workload to Dean's Council.

Next meeting is Feb. 25th, 9am, Rasmuson Library Joint Conference Room.

B. Faculty Affairs - Jon Dehn

Jon Dehn talked about concerns with the automated reporting system for activity reports. Their primary concerns are two-fold. First, the automated system seems to serve a separate role from that of the annual activity report -- the automated system provides accurate metrics for UA; while the activity report is designed to help faculty guide and develop their careers, and they feel these two roles are not compatible. Second, there are security concerns about data-mining and confidentiality.

Potential adjunct faculty exploitation is being looked at by a sub-committee lead by Ken Barrick. They're looking for facts about adjuncts to add to the anecdotal information gathered so far.

The committee is looking at potential changes in the bylaws to clarify their role in communicating with the unions. They're also looking at the bylaws with regard to their role with the legislature. Perhaps they can be a clearinghouse to help people formulate ideas and learn what's going on so there aren't competing proposals or people working at cross-purposes talking to the legislature.

A new matter came up where it appears a research faculty can't put forward an emeritus nomination, although an emeritus can be awarded to research faculty. This should be easily rectified though. [Sarah Lewis (from the Provost's Office) who was present at the Senate meeting offered to talk with Jon following the meeting to clear this up as it seems to be a miscommunication.]

Regarding Abel Bult-Ito's concerns about the Chancellor's Diversity committee nomination that he mentioned at last December's meeting, the committee decided that to avoid this happening again, if the chancellor doesn't accept a nominee, then he or she should give cause as to why to the Senate. The role is so that the Senate can better serve the needs, and they want to ensure Senate representation on the Diversity committee.

The following report was submitted with the agenda:

Faculty Affairs Committee Meeting
15 Feb 2008 14:00-15:30 WRRB 101

Present: Barrick, Bret-Harte, Christie, Dehn, Fowell, Hogan, Reynolds, Rosenberg, Wiesenburg

Update from committee chair, comments on statements given in the last administrative committee meeting and Senate.

Pending Items:

- Annual Activities Reports
 - Vigorous discussion on all points
 - Target to have reports and motions by end of Senate term
 - Current comments from test group focus on ease of use. Faculty Affairs Committee sees a need for examination of larger issues.
 - The report is a measure of faculty performance, hence sensitive, and raises concerns about confidentiality and academic freedom.
 - The need for metrics on faculty performance and the purpose of Annual Activities Reports are two separate things.
 - The system appears ad hoc, with full ramifications not considered.
 - Data-mining is a serious issue of concern.
 - Approach from this committee
 - Prepare a report outlining the issues and comparing the current system and the proposed system.
 - Four options discussed
 - Accept the current system with changes to remove sensitive and irrelevant fields, ensure confidentiality and security.
 - Recommend killing the initiative from the committee, and voting on this in the Senate.
 - Bring the initiative to the Unions to be negotiated as part of the CBA given the concerns over workload, confidentiality and academic freedom.

- Separate the two functions of Annual Activities Reports and Faculty metrics, help the administration design a less onerous reporting system that meets the guidelines laid out to the Faculty Alliance almost 5 years ago. Leave the current Annual Activities Report as is for now, perhaps use the software support funds for a data entry person instead to create a useful database of faculty performance based on the fields that fall in the public domain. ro 0ffb7

- Note that the rules for Emeriti nomination do pass through this committee, and we have the ability to amend them.
- Bult-Ito request to investigate appointment to Chancellor's Committee on Diversity
 - Letter entered into Senate minutes and email exchanges were discussed.
 - Bult-Ito brings up three points in the letter, he feels:

General comment is that the criteria have improved much. There are only a few remaining points that we would like clarified:

Grammar and spelling errors need to be fixed.

C. 2. a. Case studies should be added to the list at the top of that section
Clarify assessment of library programs. Is this in-house? Should this go under service?

C. 2. d. Peer-reviewed exhibit curation does not fit well here. It should be a separate bullet.

C D. Last paragraphs in both is these sections: It should either 1) give expectations for associate level or 2) drop expectations for full.

D. 2. After g. It should start : "Along with University service, librarians also must have unit service. As such,..." then go on with "librarians must demonstrate competence..."

English and Philosophy and Humanities (Gerri Brightwell was present to answer specific questions)

General comment is that the criteria are good. There are only a few points that we would like clarified:

First paragraph: Do you want to say "for use in annual evaluation" or for more general guidance.

B A. f. Instead of "web pages" use IT or technology based advances

C. 2. a. Not all forms of writing is peer-reviewed. How can it be show that the work has merit? Perhaps pull non-peer reviewed items out and put under a separate bullet. Also, add "selected by editor or publisher" where applicable.

Specific criteria of associate and full professor will not be included as per dept.

D. Committee on the Status of Women - Jane Weber

Jane mentioned the fliers for the April 18 P&T workshop available at the back table, and asked for folks to post these widely and spread the word.

The following report was included with the agenda:

Committee on the Status of Women
Meeting Minutes February 19, 2008

J. Student Academic Development & Achievement - Cindy Hardy

Cindy Hardy mentioned that more meeting minutes are forthcoming. They've been talking with Linda Hapsmith about ACT scores and student success rates, related to reading levels needed by students to pass certain classes. Also mentioned the role of this committee is to address issues of student success -- and therefore invite others with classes in their departments dealing with student study skills, student success, orientation, etc. – please let the committee have input on them.

The following report was included in the agenda:

SADA Committee Meeting
Meeting Minutes February 2, 2008

Attending: Linda Hapsmith, Bernice Joseph, Mark Box, Cindy Hardy, Joe Mason, Dana Greci, Brian Rasley

The main focus of our meeting was a discussion of a motion to amend mandatory placement brought to the Curricular Affairs Committee by Michael Schuldiner, English Department Chair. We discussed whether or not to support the motion.

Cindy reported that PAIR data in the new motion includes a small sample size (the cohort is only 51 students) and considers a grade of D to be a successful outcome. She also said this motion amends the catalogue, not the original motion and referred us to paragraphs 1 and 3 in the original motion for information about testing and placement.

Linda reported that Curricular Affairs supported using the motion to change policy because these changes affect more than just CLA. The hard part, she thought, will be checking all the high school GPAs as it's not possible to do it yet through BANNER.

We discussed who should be responsible for placing students into ENGL F111x and how accurate an indicator of English placement a GPA is. Our committee felt that graduate student teaching assistants should not be responsible for placement decisions. We discussed the in-class writing sample and suggested that students who don't meet the minimum requirements using placement tests could have the option of taking COMPASS or using a writing sample. We had forwarded a recommendation on placement to the English Department last semester, but the English Department's Composition Committee hasn't met yet this semester because the English Department has been busy interviewing candidates for the Composition Director position.

We discussed various options regarding the motion: table it, send it forward with our comments, hold it to make changes, amend the original motion. We decided to bring the motion to the Senate meeting on Monday with amended language. The new language will substitute "Composition Director or appropriate rural campus director," instead of "instructor," thus taking placement decisions out of the hands of graduate level Teaching Assistants. We will go back to the original motion at our next meeting to review the language that's written there about what assessment methods are used.

The next meeting will be February 15, 2:00-3:30pm.
